ATTEMPT TO WRECK PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN

Two Under Arrest and Admit Guilt

Say Placed Auto On Track To Try Collect Damages

Obstacle Removed As Lights of Special Played On Workers.

ON STEEP GRADE

Negro Discovers Car, Calls Help and Removes It In Time.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Oct. 24.—(AP)—An alleged plot which would have involved President Hoover's special train in a wreck with a heavy sedan five miles north of here was thwarted last night by three men who removed the obstruction from the B. & O. track a few minutes before the train arrived.

The train was halted for 18 minutes while secret service men and railroad detectives started an investigation which resulted a few hours later in the arrest of two negroes who confessed, according to officers, that they placed the auto on the track in a plot to collect damages for its destruction. The sedan was placed on the track on a steep grade and was discovered by Arch Keller, negro, who had gone to the crossing in hope of seeing the President as his train passed. Keller called Edward Hopson and the two, with the assistance of a motorist, George Wein, of Jeffersonville, Ind., removed the car while the headlights of the train, approaching at 60 miles an hour, played on them.

License Plate Is Clue
Through the license plates the auto was traced to Chas. W. Burdick, 12, and Young E. Wright, 43, negroes. Officers said Burdick admitted placing the car on the crossing and that Wright, who recently bought the car for $500, paid him $25 to do so.

No charge had been filed against the negroes early today. They are being held in jail here.

Think Panic Over In Stock Market

After Sharp Drop, Many of Leading Securities Climb Back.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A stock market panic appeared to have been checked shortly after noon as leading bankers issued reassurances and prices on many leading stocks, after declining from $10 to $10 per share, rebounded sharply.

U. S. Steel, common, after a drop of $9.50 a share to $194.50 more than regained its loss selling at 1.30 at $206. American Telephone, after tumbling $21 to $251 per share snapped back to $268.

Total sales on the exchange up to 1:30 were 10,171,900 shares breaking all records and comparing with the turn-over of 8,216,240 for the full day's session, the previous record made last March 26.

Takes Own Forward Pass and Makes 20-Yd. Gain

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The score have reached a new high in the following situation in many newspapers, a syndicated cartoon which showed Capt. Irving Langhoff of Marquette's 1919 eleven "catching his own forward pass."

The athletic records at the school show that in the North Dakota game of 1919, Capt. Langhoff tossed a pass to his right end, who juggled it. A North Dakota man then took his turn at juggling the pilskin and meanwhile, Langhoff ran in on the play, grabbed the ball and took it for a 20-yard gain.

Local Women Given Honor At State Meet

Mrs. Elsie Allen, Mrs. Emma Hamilton and Mrs. Elba Davis returned last night from Little Rock where they represented the local lodge at the state meeting of Rebekahs and I. O. O. F. of the state. Mrs. Allen was chosen a vice president of the assembly for the ensuing year. Mrs. Hamilton re-elected state secretary. Eureka Springs was chosen as next meeting city.

Cowboy Airman Is Last To Try "Suicide Route"

By the Associated Press
The passing of the hours today seems confirm fears that Urban P. Dittman, Jr., who attempted an eastward crossing of the north Atlantic in a tiny monoplane, had perished.

No word of either aviator or plane has been received since the low-winged ship slipped over horizon after his mystery take-off. For a time it was believed, from a report came from Harbor Grace, Neb., that the steamer Kyle had relayed a message from an unidentified ship saying that bits of red wreckage, apparently from a plane had been found. Dittman's plane was red.

Anne Austin Writes New Mystery Story

Anne Austin, author of the sensational serial success, "The Black Detective," is featured in a new mystery story.

"The Avenging Parrot," which starts Friday Oct. 25 in the Hope Star, is even more mystifying than "Pigeon," has written another detective story.

In her latest mystery, Mrs. Austin introduces Bonnis Dundee, a detective character new in fiction and destined to be the central figure in more serials by the same author.

"The Avenging Parrot" centers about the murder of a lonely woman in a boarding house. The tangled skein of evidence puzzles the detective.

Hollywood Has Million Dollar Film Fire Today

One Dead In Blast Which Wrecks Half Million Dollar Building.

CAUSE UNASSIGNED

Employees Escape Between Time of First and Second Blasts.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 24.—(AP)—One man killed and motion picture films, the value of which will probably run well into the millions, were lost in an explosion and fire which shot flames through windows and doors. The laboratory workers escaped by the narrowest of margins.

In the confusion aroused while firemen were battling the flames several persons were reported missing, but a check-up of those known to have been in the building accounted for all but one. Firemen later removed Albert Lund from the wreckage but he died on the way to the hospital.

Due to the fact that the master films of several new motion picture productions it is impossible to get an accurate estimate of the damage, pending a survey by producers. Early estimates of the loss ran as high as fifty millions of dollars, but fire department and film company officials said the initial estimate would probably be greatly reduced as some of the celluloids appeared not to have been damaged.

The building, costing more than $900,000, is practically completely wrecked.

Aimee's Secret Roll Grand Trunk Ferry Found By Officers Believed Be Lost

Kept Private Account of Temple Funds Under Assumed Name.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—The district attorney's office announced today it had located the bank account which Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson was alleged to have disguised with the name of "Elizabeth and Ruth Johnson" and had corroborated her connection with it through one of her former secretaries, Letha Mae Brooks. The announcement was coupled with the disclosure that Chief Deputy District Attorney Daniel Beecher had issued Grand Jury subpoenas for the financial records of Angelus Temple, Mrs. McPherson's principal evangelist enterprise.

The investigation of the bank account and the temple records developed from the assertion of six pastors, two of whom have been discharged from Miss McPherson's ministerial staff that financial affairs of the temple have been tampered with by the evangelist.

Pine Bluff Will Celebrate Birthday

Is 100th Anniversary of the Founding of Jefferson County.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Pine Bluff citizens are planning a celebration for November 29 to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Jefferson county.

The celebration will occupy the afternoon of November 29, and in addition to the program, a homecoming of former Pine Bluff and Jefferson county residents has been planned.

A parade, in which various historical events in the history of the county will be depicted by spittable floats, will be one of the features of the program. Business houses are to display curios of the early life of the county.

Committees on various features of the celebration have been appointed. Mrs. Lillian Mohler is general chairman of the event.

Cannibal Bass Killed By Appetite's Ambition

ANTIOCH, Cal., Oct. 24.—Cannibalism as practiced by a bass in the San Joaquin river on a catfish proved fatal for the catfish. The catfish, 10 inches long, caught in the bass' throat, and being unable to swallow the feline navigator, the bass died of starvation, or at least that was the way it was told by Frank Fortado, Antioch, finder of the fish.

Local Legion Post Plans Intensive Drive for Members

Intend To Make Every Honorably Discharged Man A Member.

NAME LEGION DAYS

Mayors Proclamation Sets November 1 To 11 for Work.

An intensive campaign for membership in The American Legion will be conducted in Hempstead county, from November 1 to 11, according to Barney Hamm, Commander of the Leslie Huddleston Post No. 12, The American Legion, of this city.

Mayor Boyett has issued a proclamation designating Nov. 1 to 11, as "American Legion Days," and urging all citizens to cooperate with the Legion Post in enrolling members for the coming year.

Unusual interest in The American Legion has developed as a result of the election of O. L. Bodenhamer, of El Dorado, Arkansas as National Commander. Already several new posts have been organized, and established posts are finding the task of signing up memberships relatively easy. The goal of the State Membership is 10,000 members, and the quota assigned for the local post is 125 members.

"We want every honorable discharged World War Veteran to become a member of The American Legion," Barney Hamm said. "We want Arkansas, to make the greatest per centage gain in the history of the department as a result of Bodenhamer's election, and thereby establish the Legion in Arkansas on a more permanent basis. By bringing our post membership to a new record, we hope to provide better service to our disabled comrades. We are filling out blanks almost daily for veterans who have failed to file for their Adjusted Compensation or Bonus, since the final time limit for filing such claims expires Jan. 1, 1930.

We expect to discover among our prospective members many veterans who are in need of hospitalization, which has been made possible without cost by the Legion.

"By bringing new members into the Legion and having our service officer investigate their disability claims, we find veterans often are falling to receive all of the compensation due them for service-connected disabilities.

"We must maintain a large membership to obtain legislative benefits for war veterans. Our membership dues are low, $1.00 a year covers annual dues and includes a year's subscription to the Monthly; State dues are $1.50 a year and include The Arkansas Legionnaire, our State paper. Local dues are $1.00 a year. Membership dues paid before January 1st will include all of 1930."

Home-Coming and 'Dad's Day' At Arkansas Tech

RUSSELLVILLE, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Arkansas Polytechnic and Dad's Day, an occasion which has been observed annually at the school for a number of years.

Fathers and mothers of students have been invited to visit the school on that day, and are to be shown special courtesies and given opportunities to become acquainted with the college staff and the various departments.

The annual homecoming football game will be played on that day between Tech and State Teachers College of Conway.

"Open house" will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday, and following the visits and students will assemble on Beaulieu field to witness the grid battle.

Plan Merger of Dairy Concerns Operating Largely In Arkansas

J. C. Penny and Associates To Acquire Control of Southwest Products Company, With Dairy Development In State To Follow.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 23.—Arrangements virtually have been completed for consolidation of the Southwestern Dairy Products Co., which operates extensively in Arkansas and three other states, and Foremost Dairy Products Inc., which is controlled by J. C. Penny chain store magnate, it was announced here yesterday by B. W. Reuben of New York city, representing Moore, Leonard and Lynch members of the New York Stock Exchange.

Representatives of the two organizations have agreed on principle, but have not yet worked out all details of the merger, Mr. Reuben said. It generally is conceded, however, that Mr. Penny will be chairman of the board of directors of the amalgamated companies.

Word that the deal was pending was received here more than a week ago. Charles M. Conway of Texasarkia is president of the Southwestern Dairy Products Company and C. Hamilton Moore, Little Rock attorney, is associated with Mr. Conway and C. S. Downey of Dallas, Tex., in control of the company. George M. Foreman and Meeting promptly at nine o'clock this morning the Daughters of the Confederacy holding their annual convention swung into action for a day to be replete with activities. Election of officers for the ensuing year was high point of interest in the forenoon session with a visit to the state's war-time capitol at Washington and a reception and program by members of the U. D. C. residing at Washington, Ozan and Fulton and greetings by Confederate veterans of the county is to feature the afternoon.

This evening will be given over to presentation of an historical pageant, written especially for the occasion by Mrs. W. O. Shipley and directed by Mrs. R. T. White. A luncheon, tendered by the Kiwanis club was the noon-hour event today, following a similar luncheon Wednesday by the Rotary club.

Tonight Hon. Steve Carrigan, prosecuting attorney of this district, will deliver the annual address to the convention.

Following are the officers chosen today to serve for the ensuing year.

Biggest Airship's First Flight

Even the rum-runners on the Detroit river are glad this arsenal of machine guns, rifles, pistols and navy uniforms, stolen from the Naval Reserve Armory at Detroit, was recovered by Detectives Christian Nelson (left) and Fred Deschler of Detroit. Reason: federal officers believe the four men arrested when the arsenal was seized were part of a gang who had planned use of the guns and uniforms to equip a fake coast guard boat and hijack rum-runners.

"Your Money's Worth Or Your Money Back"

A Proclamation

The people of the City of Hope, Ark., have the greatest of admiration for the splendid service given by her sons and daughters in time of war. They appreciate the heroic sacrifices that have been made by the loyal men and women who have so ably defended this great nation of ours in every emergency.

Today we have in this city an organization composed of those who only a decade ago were engaged in that most glorious service. They served their country well and when the war was over they banded themselves into The American Legion, determined to continue the same service they gave overseas. They dedicated their organization to "God and Country" and immediately began that work which has identified The American Legion as one of the greatest patriotic forces America has ever known.

One of the first tasks of the Legion was to make provision for the relief and rehabilitation of those who were disabled. They looked after the welfare of the children who were left orphans by the war. Then they launched a great program of unselfish service to community, state and nation. Many activities were undertaken by the Legion in an effort to serve the people and the country.

This year the Legion, and the Legion Auxiliary which is associated with the Legion in its work, is anxious that the 1930 program be started as soon as possible. In order that the full strength of the two organizations can thus early be put to work on the great objectives of the coming year, from November 1 to 11, has been set aside when every effort will be made by the Legion to have paid up for 1930 the dues of all who are 1929 members.

The citizens of Hope are justly appreciative of this peace time service of the Legion and they are willing to contribute their efforts to the success of the Legion and they are willing to contribute their efforts to the success of the Legion program. It is appropriate and fitting that the people of this city should pledge full cooperation to the Legion and Legion Auxiliary in its memorial program.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Ruff Boyett, Mayor of the city of Hope, Ark., proclaim November 1 to 11 inclusive as American Legion Days and urge every citizen to encourage and aid the Legion in enrolling members for the coming year. Every World War veteran, particularly he who has not heretofore belonged to the Legion, should take this opportunity of becoming associated in the great work.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of Hope to be affixed.

DONE, in the City of Hope this 23rd day of October, 1929.

(Signed) RUFF BOYETT

Mayor of the City of Hope

Would-Be Assassin Fires At Humbert

Italian Crown Prince Object of Attack In Belgian Capitol

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Oct. 24. (AP)—Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, affianced husband of Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, narrowly escaped death at the hands of an assassin who fired a shot at the royal suitor as he was placing a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Quick work by one of the Italian Embassy party who knocked down the assassin's arm, seized the gun and overpowered him is believed to have saved the Prince's life.

The assassin, who escaped lynching only through prompt and vigorous defensive measures by the police, told authorities that he was an Italian named Enrico Diosa and admitted he intended to fire in the air as a protest.

The young Prince, who engagement to the Belgian Princess was formally announced today, was one of the guests of those present. He continued the wreath-placing ceremony, later returning to the Italian Embassy where he is stoppings.

Pigeon Crashes Through Window to Escape Hawk

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. America's much discussed bare-leg fad that swept the country during the past summer months, failed to affect the hosiery production industry, according to Department of Commerce figures.

Women's hosiery production in August, 1929, exceeded by more than 200,000 dozen pairs that of August, 1928, the figures show.

During August 1928 the production of women's seamless and full-fashioned hose totaled 2,122,947 dozen pairs. In the same month of this year, the total production was 2,332,017.

The stately home of Mr. and Mrs. K. G. McRae, Sr., was converted into a palace of flowers last evening where the Pat Cleburne chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy entertained in honor of the Arkansas Division, who are holding their 34th annual convention in our city this week. The reception suite was hung with the ever graceful Southern smilax, with the glorious color note of yellow predominating, baskets of huge yellow chrysanthemums, graceful Cosmos, and lovely pernet roses were placed in every point of vantage. The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. S. L. Reed and Mrs. Taylor Stuart of Arkadelphia, further assisting in the reception suite were Mrs. M. M. Smith, Mrs. O. A. Shipley, Mrs. J. A. The guests were invited into the library, where the banks of exquisite roses still further stressing the chosen color note of yellow formed a floral background for the receiving line consisting of the hostess, Mrs. K. G. McRae, and the president, past presidents and state officers of the U. D. C. The guests were presented to the receiving line by Mrs. Gus Haynes, Mrs. James L. Jamison and Miss Annie Allen. The dining room was a bower of green and yellow. The beautiful table was centered with a huge bowl of lovely pernet roses encircled by wreaths of green and tall yellow banquet tapers burned in low silver holders tied with yellow tulle. Mrs. J. P. Gorin and Miss Maggie Bell poured tea and coffee from massive silver services. Assisting in the dining room where the guests were served with a most attractive salad plate were Mrs. J. T. Cave Woman?

"This wild young generation! It's as a savage living in the wilds that four-year-old Diana Hughes is being reared by her distinguished parents in London. She eats only bones, meat, rough fruits and vegetables, dresses as she is shown above in all kinds of weather—and never has been ill. Physicians marvel at her health, call her the "perfect child."

Mrs. J. L. Luck has returned from a two weeks visit with relatives and friends in Little Rock.

In the beautiful memorial service for deceased members and veterans of the Confederacy held yesterday afternoon at the First Methodist church, with Mrs. O. A. Axley presiding, the invocation was given by Dr. P. A. Buddin, pastor of the First Methodist church, followed by an organ solo by Mrs. R. T. White. The Memorial address was made by Judge Neil C. Marsh of Texarkana, a brother of the presiding officer, Mrs. O. A. Axley rendered two beautiful vocal solos, he was accompanied by Mrs. Rosemary Dewberry of Texarkana. Following the roll call of the honored dead and special tribute, the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Buddin. The church was beautiful and appropriately decorated.

WHOOPEE IN "HONKY-TONK" REAL TO SOPHIE

When Sophie Tucker comes out onto the floor of the great New York night club in "Honky-Tonk" the latest Warner Bros. talking, singing Vitaphone production which comes to the Saenger theatre Friday and Saturday and sings her torrid ditties, she doesn't need to act.

She can be perfectly natural, for she has filled this self-same role in real life on countless nights. Many years of her life have been spent as an entertainer in night clubs—mistress of ceremonies, singer of songs, and general life-of-the-party.

Much of the action of "Honky-Tonk" takes place in the Honky-Tonk Cafe, with Sophie—capering chorus girls, throngs of gay merry-makers, toy balloons, serpentine and clackers, hectic atmosphere of whoopee and Sophie!

tion when informed of the progress of the proposed consolidation and predicted that it would result in wide and intensive dairy development in this section.

"When one considers the huge amount that the South spends annually for dairy products that now are being imported from the North the success of a consolidation such as it contemplated seems readily apparent," he said. "There is no reason why this proposed amalgamation should not prove profitable, as some of the other huge dairy combines of the past few years."

C. C. Kavanaugh, president of the Central bank, and acting chairman of the Pulaski county dairy development movement, expressed similar beliefs. "The consolidation of our local dairy products interests with others throughout the South and Southwest will result, I believe, in great advancement of dairying, especially in this community where the field for progress of the industry is unlimited," he said.

Dairying His Hobby

J. C. Penney, who is known best by virtue of his chain store organization, has been identified several years with the dairy industry and dairy farming is known to be his hobby. Two weeks ago he announced that the Foremost company would build a $500,000 dairy plant at Atlanta, Ga., which Scenes From "The Avenging Parrot," The Hope Star's Thrilling Mystery Serial Which Starts Friday, October 25.

"The Avenging Parrot," a thrilling new murder mystery serial, which begins Friday in the Hope Star is one of the most fascinating stories ever offered newspaper readers.

Above are a number of the illustrations for this new story. It is written by Anne Austin, popular writer of NEA fiction, who will be remembered as the author of the widely acclaimed mystery serial, "The Black Pigeon," now being published in book form.

"The Avenging Parrot" is the story of the murder of Mrs. Emma Hogarth, a lonely woman, in a boarding house. Perplexing evidence which pointed its finger at various times on all the boarders in the house baffles investigators. It remains for Bonnie Dundee, a "cub" detective, to find the solution to the puzzling mystery from the seeming inconsequential mutterings of Mrs. Hogarth's parrot, the only witness of the crime.

The author spent several years as a newspaper reporter. She "covered" her share of murder trials and is acquainted with detective methods. Her latest serial is one of the most fascinating stories ever offered newspaper readers.

Watch for it Friday in the Hope Star.

PAIR OF ARKANSAS DAIRY CHAMPIONS

Meet a couple of Arkansas dairy prize winners. Frank Green of Little Rock, Arkansas, best dairy prize member for 1929, and Spot Owl's Johann, grand champion Jersey cow, at the 1929 Arkansas State Fair. Excellence in his club work won for Green the Blue Valley Creamery Institute's prize trip to the National Dairy Show at St. Louis, where the camera caught this picture of the two Arkansas champions.

At the recent national dairy show in St. Louis, Mr. Penney for the third time was awarded the Peer Challenge Cup for Guernsey breeders, said to be the most important trophy for dairy cattle breeders in the world. In a statement after he had received the cup, Mr. Penney said that there was potentially $300,000,000 in yearly sales open to a properly organized dairy company in the South and Southwest.

"Dairy production in the South and Southwest at present is only slightly more than 80 per cent of the total consumption, especially in butter products and cheese," he said. "The South offers the best field in the country for uninterrupted all-year production of milk and cream of the highest quality. There now is imported into the Southern states more than $500,000,000 worth of dairy products annually which logically should be produced in that section."

Mr. Ruhen pointed out yesterday that the amalgamation will bring within reach of the investing public a class of securities that heretofore have not been available for southwestern investors, particularly those in the small communities.

Goitre Not A Disease

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery

Milwaukee, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. B 30, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 21 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense. Write him today.

AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL," ETC.

CHAPTER XLVII

Helen said nothing about the locket to Eva, nor to Bob when he came. Before his arrival she had seen clearly that it was a clue to the real heiress. And she was frightened.

Suppose she told them the truth—that she was an imposter, a cheat, the daughter of a criminal? The thought aroused all the horror she had lived through since Brent had told her that she was not the granddaughter of Cyril Cunningham. The blessed relief she had experienced when it flashed upon her that he could not carry out his threat to prevent her from marrying Bob, left her now. She felt herself caught again in an agony of indecision. To keep silent, to go on—without fear, happily, with Bob; this was her temptation. She could do so much good with the money, as much good as anyone.

But the real heiress? What about her? Did she exist? Could she be found? Would Mrs. Ennis know where she was? But then, why hadn't she revealed the girl's identity? Why had she remained silent?

These questions were well-toned that weighed Helen's hopes to earth.

Before her lay a golden future—could she only destroy the one thing that stood between it and her—her conscience; could she only forget that somewhere there might be a girl she had robbed, a girl living in poverty perhaps.

When Bob came she was trembling with mental agony. He came straight across the room to her and took her in his arms. She rested there without offering any resistance, sobbing freely.

He could not get the story of what happened from her. Some one else in the apartment told him of Brent's tragic death.

Helen clung to him while he listened. To lose him now! Suddenly she went limp in his arms. He heard the accident gone over.

He carried her to the divan and put her gently down. She opened her eyes and waved away those who gathered round to help her.

"Eva needs you," she said to Bob. "She is in" She could not say Brent's name, but Bob followed her glance to the bedroom door and understood.

Still he hesitated and Helen told him he must go to his sister.

Presently he came back with Eva, dragging her along with halting steps.

He found Helen waiting, with her hat and coat on. The superintendent went down with them, helping Helen to her car.

She got in first, and held out her arms for Eva, who was in a state bordering on complete collapse.

Nothing touching on the accident was said during the drive to Yonkers. For the most part Eva lay quiet against Helen. Now and then she shuddered, or moaned pitifully.

Helen could do nothing to comfort her beyond drawing her closer. Her own heart was breaking.

Mrs. Ennis ran out when they stopped before the house, and less ordeal. She reminded herself that Brent had not proved that she was not Helen Nellin.

No, such hope was absurd, she realized. That second locket! She must find the owner. Then she would know, beyond question, she prayed, if there was a child who should stand in her place.

Suddenly Mrs. Ennis spoke. "I guess I'd better tell you," she said. "It is right for you to know if you are going to marry Bob; but not even he, or Eva herself has been told." She paused and looked at Helen appealingly. The girl said nothing.

"They are about the same age," Mrs. Ennis went on; "and he was such a tiny shaver when we . . . when we took Eva . . . He'd been out on a farm for nearly a year with my cousin Emma. He doesn't suspect that Eva isn't his sister. We gave up the hotel because he was too delicate as a child to live in town, and went out to the farm. People lost track of us, and when we bought this house and moved back to town a few years later after Cousin Emma's death no one had the slightest idea that Eva was not my own child. Heaven knows I've loved her as such," she added tremulously.

Helen sat like a graven image, except for the light that was glowing in her eyes and the slight movement of her parted lips.

"Then Eva," she whispered—the words would not come louder—"Eva is"

"An adopted child," Mrs. Ennis supplemented for her. "The daughter of the man we knew as Charles Owens. I'm sorry I can't tell you more about her parentage than that, but we know nothing more about it. It was enough for us that we fell in love with the child for her own sake. She was such a darling. My heart went out to her the very first time I saw her. She wanted her mama, and Owens didn't know how to look after her, so when he went away he said—'that he'd just come back for a while to be near a place that held tender memories for him—we begged him to let us keep the little girl. He was willing and . . . and we've had Eva ever since.'"

"Eva!" Helen murmured; "Eva! . . . Evangeline! Oh, Mrs. Ennis, don't you know? Don't you know?"

Her excitement alarmed Mrs. Ennis. "Know what?" she asked fearfully.

"That Eva is really Evangeline Nellin!" Helen cried.

"But I don't understand," Mrs. Ennis grasped. "You . . . she couldn't be! Anyway her father was Charles Owens."

"Oh no, no he wasn't. He was Charles Nellin!"

"Then—" Mrs. Ennis' voice was shaking with emotion—"who are you?"

Helen wilted. Her head drooped a little, but she quickly brought it up again and held it proudly erect when she said without a quaver: "I am an imposter."

For a moment silence followed her words—a silence that seemed to vibrate with unspoken thoughts.

"My dear," Mrs. Ennis said at last, betraying her inability to grasp the full import of this startling turn of events.

Helen's throat was tight; forcing herself to speak was torture but she went courageously on. "I have no right to the Cunningham fortune," she said; "it came to me through fraud."

Mrs. Ennis exclaimed her disbelief.

"It is true," Helen affirmed, then suddenly her control broke and she slipped down to the floor and put her face in her hands against Mrs. Ennis' knees.

There she sobbed out the story from beginning to end. The woman listened, soothing her occasionally with a touch on her richly gleaming hair, a gentle pat on her slender shoulder.

"I wish," Helen gasped out at last, "that you would tell Bob. I can't go through it again. It is too terrible. But please wait until I've gone. I'll be at Bramblewood until . . . until your lawyer comes" She broke off and got to her feet.

Mrs. Ennis thought it best to let her go. But she added a word of encouragement. "Don't worry, dear. Bob will know what to do."

"But he can't ever marry a girl like me!" Helen cried.

Mrs. Ennis smiled over her better knowledge of her son. But in her smile was gravity. The daughter of a man of crime.

She shook her head in doubt as she went back into the house after seeing Helen to her car and called to Bob to come downstairs. He knew that Helen was gone so he obeyed.

As briefly as she could tell it, Mrs. Ennis repeated the story Helen had sobbed out to her.

"Well," she said at last, "don't look so stupid."

"But Eva . . . Helen! I can't believe it!"

"I'm sure it's true but I don't know what we're going to do about it," Mrs. Ennis confessed. "That poor girl . . . she's frightened to death. But of course if the money belongs to Eva she must have it. Who'd have guessed that she's been cheated out of such a birthright all these years?"

"She hasn't been cheated out of everything," Bob said defensively. "Helen has been more than generous to her. The poor kid. Mother, I'm going over to her!"

Mrs. Ennis held him eternally back. "But son," she said; "you mustn't go unless you want to marry a . . . marry a—"

"Huh!" The short ejaculation was packed with meaning.

"You must think it over," the mother pleaded.

"Mother, be yourself," Bob said impatiently. "I love Helen."

Mrs. Ennis smiled in surrender. "I just wanted you to be sure," she said. "I knew you'd go. I told Helen so."

"I'd fly if I could," Bob declared. "She might do something desperate before I get there."

"No she won't," Mrs. Ennis said with complete assurance. "She's scared, but she's brave. Here, wait a minute, here's your hat!"

"Don't want a hat!"

Bob was off. His old car tore like mad through the side streets of Yonkers and down the highway to Bramblewood.

At the door there he brushed past Ashe without giving him a second glance and began to call, "Helen! Helen!"

No answer.

"Where is she?" he said so fiercely that Ashe quailed before him.

"In the garden sir, I think," he said. "Shall I announce you, sir?"

"Announce hell!" Bob returned and flashed out of the house and down to the garden, calling, "Helen! Helen! where are you?"

She was walking in the dying garden, white with despair, ringing her hands.

She heard, perhaps, half of what Bob said to her. She was too tired, and infinitely glad to be in his arms, to follow his words. But the blessed relief and comfort they held flowed into her pain-weary brain like balm.

Somehow he was going to melt away the black cloud that hung over her until nothing remained but the silver lining.

There was no talk of prison, of public disgrace. Everything would be arranged.

At last Helen interrupted him. "What does Eva say?" she asked. "I didn't stop to find out," Bob confessed. "Let's go in and call up. I'm sure mother has told her, though she hadn't when I left. We'll hear what she has to say. And my guess is you'll find Eva continued on page six

Mrs. Ennis leaned nearer. "But there could be two lockets just alike," she said quaveringly, almost fearfully, it seemed to Helen.

"Yes, there could be," the girl agreed; "but the locket Eva lost contains a picture of Charles Nellin."

"Oh no! you're mistaken," Mrs. Ennis declared. "It's a picture of a man named Owens."

"It is Charles Nellin," Helen insisted. "I found a likeness of him among my . . . among the effects of the girl who ran away with him and became his wife. You know, didn't you, that Evangeline Cunningham married a man named Charles Nellin?"

"Yes, yes, of course. Everyone in Yonkers knew that."

"Didn't you ever see him?"

"No. Very few people here knew him. He came up from New York, I think, to give Miss Cunningham music lessons."

"Then you wouldn't have known him if he came back as Mr. Owens? What was the man's first name? Do you remember? You see, I'm sure you haven't seen him for a long time, have you?"

"No, I haven't," Mrs. Ennis reluctantly acknowledged.

"What was his first name?" Helen asked again.

"Why I . . . I think it was Charles."

Helen was breathing rapidly. Her hands flew out excitedly.

"Did he?" she said jerkily, "have a little girl with him?"

Mrs. Ennis paled under her eager gaze. "Why do you ask me that?" she evaded.

But Helen was not to be put off. "Did he? Did he?" she demanded.

"Why . . . why yes, he did," Mrs. Ennis admitted; "but really, Helen I'd rather not talk about him. It was a long time ago and I didn't know him very well."

Helen brushed her aversion to talk aside with a gesture. "We must discuss him," she said simply. "This is far more important than you realize, I think, Mrs. Ennis."

"But I'm afraid I don't see" She was about to tell Helen, as tactfully as she could, that she considered the girl was interfering in something that did not concern her. Helen stopped her.

"What because of the child?" she cut in.

Mrs. Ennis drew back in alarm. "How should I know?" she countered after a slight hesitation.

"Did he take her away with him?" Helen pressed on. "Oh, won't you tell me what you know about him, Mrs. Ennis, please?"

"Well his name was Owens, so it couldn't have been Nellin," Mrs. Ennis stubbornly insisted. "He came to us when we had a small hotel here in Yonkers years ago. He had a little girl . . ."

"What was her name?"

Mrs. Ennis regarded her blankly. She had recovered her composure, outwardly at least, and now she was prepared to meet Helen's question.

"Was it . . . Helen could scarcely restrain her excitement as she put the rest of her question. "Was it," she repeated, "Evangeline?"

Seize Suspect in Shipboard Murder

Rumormongers have been warned to stay away when the U. S. S. Sylph, pictured above, private yacht of secretaries of the navy for many years, is put on the auction block November 19. The government has taken special precautions to see that the trim, swift, craft doesn't fall in the hands of liquor interests. Several months ago the presidential yacht Mayflower was put out of commission at the order of President Hoover.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Showily Mrs. Ennis shook her head. "No, it was not Evangeline," she said.

Her answer came as a shock to Helen, who was so certain she had found trace of the legitimate Cunningham heiress. She stared wordlessly at the woman sitting across from her. Mrs. Ennis was strangely agitated; she seemed to be trying to bring herself to say something that she was loath to reveal.

Her hands fluttered up to her face, twisted around her mouth, then dropped back to clutch at the arms of her chair.

In Helen's heart a faint hope was growing that it was all a need-

Seventy Years Young!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE scorns that ancient prejudice which harshly dictated that age was a limiting factor of usefulness. To-day, old age not only commands respect but demands its place in every walk of life.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

Another Dairy Market

THE entry of J. C. Penney, famous chain store operator, into the dairy business of Arkansas, as announced this morning in news dispatches telling of the proposed consolidation of Southwestern Dairy Products with Mr. Penney's company, Foremost Dairy Products, Inc., means that a truly major dairy market is being set up in Arkansas.

Under the guidance of Charles M. Conway, Texarkana capitalist, the Southwestern company had purchased and consolidated its way into the front rank of dairy firms operating in this section. The new alliance with J. C. Penney, therefore, means that it has attained national proportions.

The benefits accruing to Arkansas dairy farmers and the Arkansas communities whose prosperity depends upon the dairy farmer, should be very large.

Agriculture's prosperity has always been determined by the presence or absence of major markets. The great reason for the prosperity of Western agriculture, and the relative poverty of Southern farmers, was in the beginning a matter of marketing organization. With the big cities in the Middle West and North, it was only natural that a marketing system for farm products should grow up many years in advance of the South.

The magnificent boom of the New South has changed all that. Industry began moving into the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama—and Arkansas. Points like Charlotte, Raleigh, Atlanta and Memphis have suddenly become major markets. And the logical result was that agricultural marketing systems quickly followed the establishment of these centers of industry and concentrated population.

This means to the average farmer that he can count more confidently than ever before on the prospect of turning his products into cash. But he must grow the things for which there is a keen demand, for which ample marketing facilities have already been established.

The consolidation of Southwestern Dairy Products and Mr. Penney's company means that there will be an ever-widening market for milk. Arkansas farmers may go into dairying on a greater scale. And they should start now.

The consolidation should also mean something for Arkansas cities. Mr. Penney has already announced plans for a half-million-dollar dairy plant in Atlanta—and we may anticipate that smaller plants will be established in local dairy centers, such as our own city of Hope.

Not Self-Sustaining

AMERICANS have always been proud of the great extent of their country's natural resources. They have been told, very often, that the nation is self-sufficient; and the fact that its territory yields more of such great commodities as oil, coal, copper, lumber, wheat, cotton and iron than any other nation seems to substantiate that statement.

But modern civilization is very complicated. It requires an enormous number of products to keep it going. So, when Theodore Knappen of the Magazine of Wall Street took the trouble to investigate the situation the other day, he found himself driven to this conclusion:

"The United States is not self-contained. We could not maintain our present population with the simplest sort of living standards, and we could not exist at all according to present standards, if we were cut off from the rest of the world."

This is a surprising statement. Yet Knappen presents figures to back it up.

The United States is wholly, or almost wholly, dependent on other nations for its supplies of such essential commodities as tin, rubber, chromium, manganese, nickel, potash, jute and sugar.

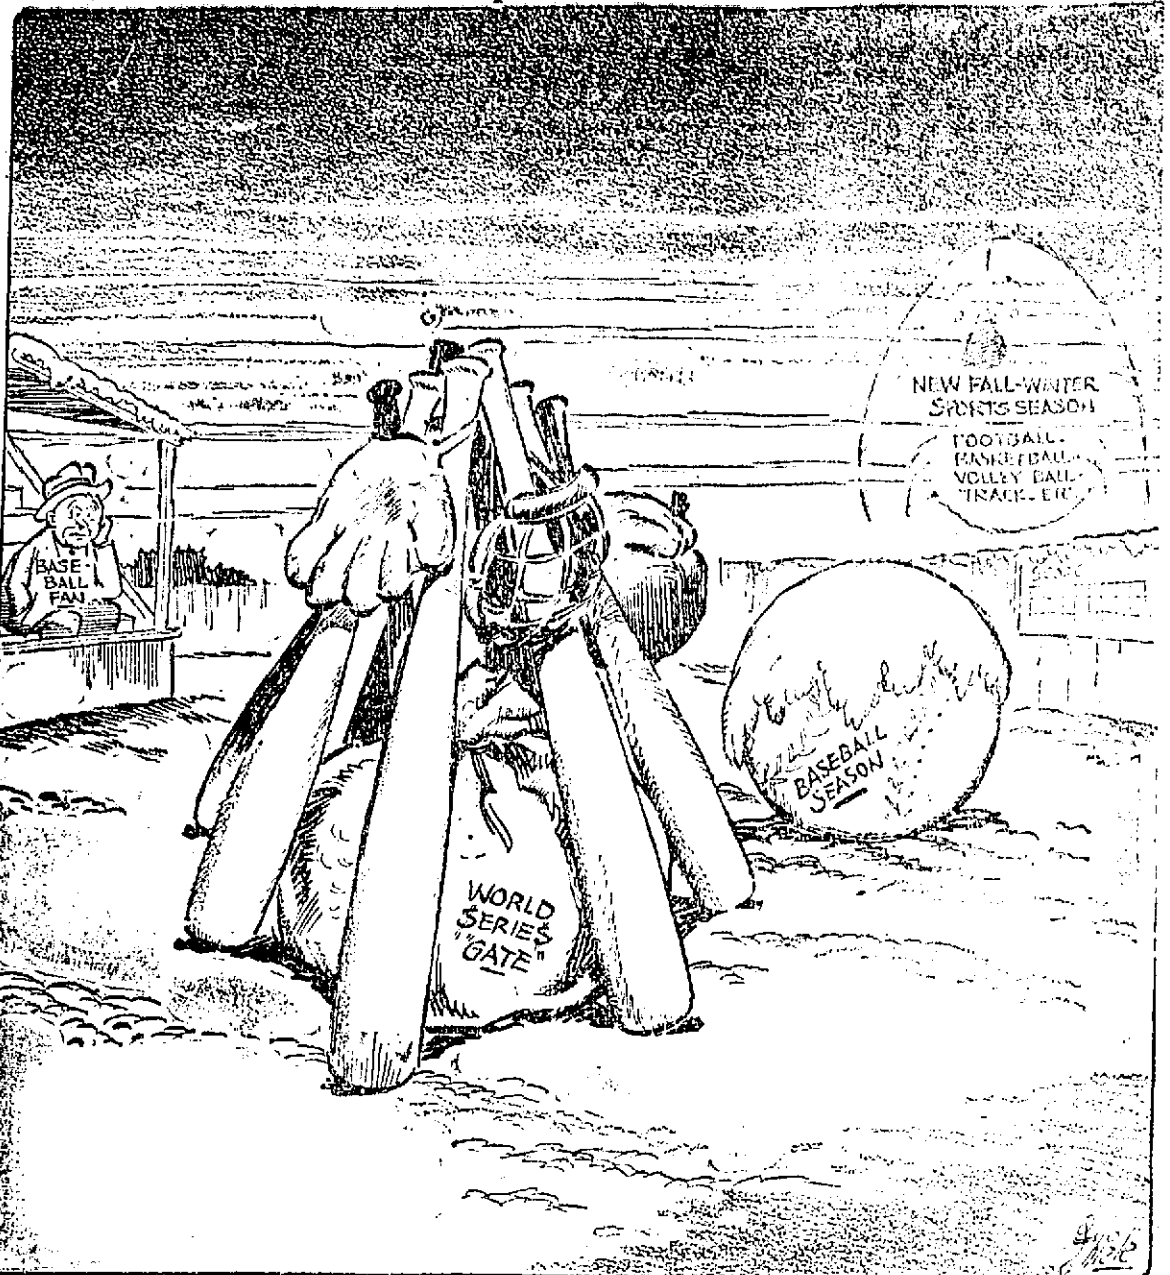

Some of those are things of which the ordinary man hears little. Yet our present civilization could not function without them. They are things we must have in ample measure, if we are to keep going.

Realization of this ought to make us a little bit more willing to turn our minds to the question of world peace.

For this fact—the fact that we are not a self-sustaining nation—obviously means that a war would be very bad business. To be sure, we might insure our safety by building a navy twice as big as anyone else's, and by maintaining an enormous army; but that would be expensive, and it might not work anyway.

It will be easier, and wiser, to see that we remain at peace.

"The Frost Is on the Pumpkin and the Fodder's in the Shock"

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — A federal judge in Philadelphia who has ruled that union labor must not attempt to raise Philadelphia wage scales to the levels prevailing elsewhere probably has done more than anyone else to insure passage of a piece of the various anti-injunction legislation which has been languishing in Congress for a long time.

If the opinion of Judge William H. Kirkpatrick of the U. S. district court against the right of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers to organize workers in Philadelphia is upheld by higher courts it will apparently mean that labor unions can be prevented from functioning in non-union territory at any time and under almost any conditions.

All Organizing Barred
The Amalgamated, one of the strongest unions in the country, went into Philadelphia to clean up sweat shop conditions and raise wages. It met with marked success. On Sept. 9, however, Judge Kirkpatrick issued an injunction sought by eight employers seeking to prevent further union organization work.

The union continued the winning of its campaign and now claims to have organized 80 per cent of the Philadelphia market, but there have been repercussions in Washington because of the injunction's sweeping nature, which Senator La Follette of Wisconsin has called a flagrant perversion of the Sherman Anti-Trust act, on which it was based.

La Follette obtained passage of a Senate resolution to investigate the issuance of the injunction and the resolution is now before a Judiciary Committee sub-committee, consisting of Chairman Norris of Nebraska and Senators Blaine of Wisconsin and Walsh of Montana.

Meanwhile, Kirkpatrick has had to give his reasons for the injunction because the Amalgamated took its case to the circuit court of appeals.

The judge's opinion is both frank and remarkable.

It sets forth that the organizing of the clothing workers of Philadelphia is an interference with interstate commerce because 80 per cent of the clothing produced in that city is shipped outside and that the effort to introduce union conditions and union wages to Philadelphia workers will result in the local manufacturers losing the advantage which a non-union field has given them.

Kirkpatrick does not contend that conditions and wages sought in Philadelphia are better or higher than those prevailing in other unionized markets, but says the aim of improving the lot of Philadelphia workers was "at best a secondary and remote one" among the Amalgamated's governing reasons for organizing them. The dominating reason, he says, was the fear that unless Philadelphia became a unionized market the nearest other market, New York, "would be compelled to go back to a non-union basis with reduced wages to its employees."

"It will be noted," the learned judge says, "that the orders are broad enough to restrain the defendants from combining to bring about strikes by peaceful measures only," and "were so intended to be."

La Follette and labor leaders say that this injunction and opinion stand the anti-trust act on its head and represent an amazing climax to a series of injunctions against labor over the country

Football players in Connecticut tries to commit suicide by ramming his head into a concrete wall, but succeeds only in getting a bad bruise. Any man who has charged into a gang of eleven husky young football players with mayhem in their hearts ought to know that a mere concrete wall couldn't hurt him.

The worst months for automobile fatalities, statistics prove, are the last two of the old year and the first ten of the new year.

which have perverted the intent of Congress. All labor organizations function nationally and the product of industries in which they work are shipped to the 48 states. If Kirkpatrick's principle is recognized it will prevent any non-union field being organized if other markets are already organized and giving better conditions and paying better wages to workers.

But neither of them dreamed that Eva would do what she did. "Let me talk with Helen," she said after a few words with Bob. Helen picked up the receiver and waited.

"Helen," Eva breathed, "are you listening?"

"Yes," Helen answered faintly. "Mother says you act as if the world had tumbled upon your head," Eva said, and there was actually a touch of exasperation in her voice. "I consider that an unforgivable reflection upon me."

"Why . . . ?" Helen did not know what to say.

"Oh, Helen," Eva cried suddenly, "I want you and Bob to be happy. I won't let anything happen to interfere with that. So please don't do anything foolish. Don't say a word to anyone."

Helen started again to voice her bewilderment.

"I've got it all worked out," Eva broke in. "There isn't anything left for me, except my music. I don't want to be an heiress. Mother says she thinks there would have to be a lot of legal fuss. Why should we have that, Helen? I'm going to make a great name for myself as he wanted me too."

Helen heard the catch in her voice, the bitter sob that followed. Then her lovely voice came on, not quite so steady as before, but clear as a bell.

"We will share the money," she said. "It will help me, but you must continue to be the Nellin girl until you and Bob are married. And if you refuse him . . ."

Chief Characters in Fascinating New Mystery Story

"Bonnie" Dundee

Norma Paige

Bert Magnus

John Straub

Cora Barker

Walter Styles

Lawrence Sharp

Here are the seven principal characters in a thrilling new mystery story, "The Avenging Parrot," which starts Friday in the Hope Star.

The story revolves about the order of a lonely woman in a boarding house. The muddled evidence baffles investigators, but Bonnie Dundee, a new detective character, finds a clue to the solution in the seemingly inconsequential mutterings of a parrot, the witty witness of the crime.

Drammed with mystery, it is a powerful, fast-moving story, written by Anne Austin, the most popular newspaper fiction writer in America.

Watch for it Friday in the Hope Star.

MOM'N POP
Problem of selecting an opponent for the season's first football game is developing into one of alarming proportions, say directors of athletics and graduate managers at the larger universities. The reason is evident. The so-called little school often proves decidedly disagreeable to the upper strata, particularly in this age of advanced football.

Most coaches in the larger school regard the ideal type of opening game as one that provides the team a neat practice, a chance to try out all the reserve material and, of course, results in a victory.

Usually the opening game of the bigger school is with a minor college. Likely looking teams hate to take the chance of being defeated early in the season before they actually get under way, and as a result, an appointment of minor strength is carded for the brushing up contest.

Grew Too Strong
Ohio State University for years gave Ohio Wesleyan the honor of opening the Scarlet and Gray gridiron season. An occasional close score game Wesleyan prestige. However, football enjoyed a substantial growth at the Methodist school and in a comparative short time the Bishops were too strong for the Buckeyes to handle, at least in the initial game of the season. The result was that Wesleyan was sent off and Wittenberg substituted.

Ohio State's team won handily from Wittenberg a year ago and capped the opener this year. However, the going was just twice as tough at it was for the Buckeyes in 1928. There was a pretty squabble this season. And now it looks like State is looking for a softer foe for the 1930 season.

Pirates Needed Homers
An essential factor in the making up of every pennant winner is one or two home-run hitters, believes Jewel Ens, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates. And take it from Ens, the Pirates are to have a couple of fence-busters before another campaign rolls around.

The Pirates wound up the 1929 season with 88 victories and 65 losses, second place in the National League. A home-run punch in their batting order might have given them the needed victories to top the Chicago Cubs, whose highly-press-agented "murderers' row" of Cuyler, Hornsby, Wilson and Stephenson was credited with snatching several games from the fire.

The records show the Phillies, Cubs and Giants each with more than 130 home runs, twice as many as the Pirate hitters amassed. Only the Reds and Braves trailed the Corsairs.

Carp Babe's Glory
There was a time when Babe Ruth was king of the cleanup hitters. Now we find Lou Gehrig

To Tame Borger

The man who tamed Mexico, Tex., after an oil boom and martial law had given it the reputation of being one of the wildest of western towns, has been given the same task at Borger, another Texas boom town. of the Babe's own team grabbing a place in the spotlight. Wilson and Hornsby of the Cubs; Bottomley and Hafey of the Cards;

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Roger Bresnahan, famous ex-Giant catcher, at the world series this year, bemoaned the fact that his heyday was 20 years ago. . . . He'd like to get in on some of the "big money" of present day ball players. . . . Dick Shikat, the heavyweight "grunt and growl" king, served four years in the German navy during the World War. . . . He was only 14 years old when the war broke out. . . . Four of his brothers saw service, also. . . . And two of them were killed in action. . . . Just to Remind You That

Frankie Edwards Caught In Texas

New Orleans Promoter Who Left With Gate Receipts Held.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Frankie Edwards, New Orleans flight promoter, object of an intensive hunt by creditors about a month ago after his disappearance with the $15,000 proceeds of the Eddie Wolfe-Canzoneri scrap in New Orleans, was arrested here Wednesday night by police who recognized him. He admitted his identity.

He was traced to Liberty, Tex., near Houston, and the search ended there, about the time the Louisiana Boxing Commission and creditors concluded that any criminal charge against him probably would not hold water, and that the promoter was at best liable only to civil process.

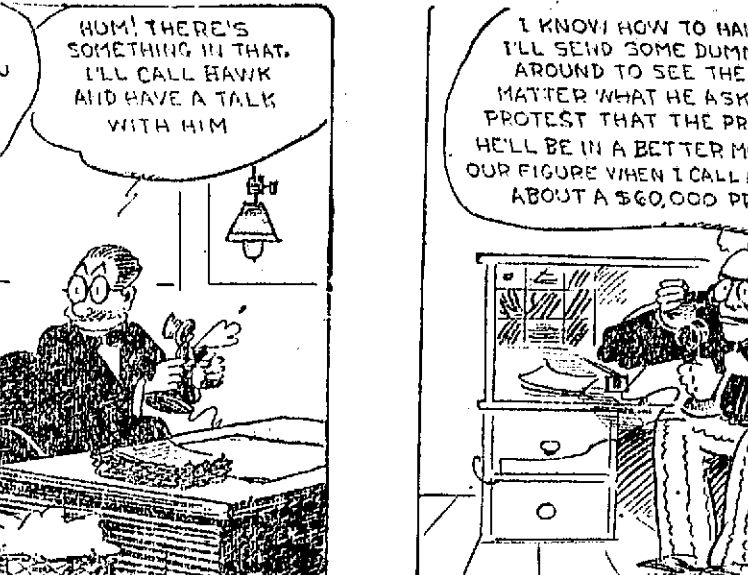

When the last gong rang in the Wolfe-Canzoneri scrap Edwards went home, spoke to his wife, and went out again. He left owing Canzoneri and Wolfe each several thousand dollars for their pugilistic services, and was indebted to numerous other persons for lesser sums. After his disappearance his promoter's license was revoked by the Louisiana Boxing Commission.

Simmons and Foxx of the Athletics; Hellmuth and Alexander of the Tigers; Klein, O'Doul and Hurst of the Giants are almost as proficient at the art of propelling baseballs out of major league parks as are the Yankee twins.

Pie Traynor, third baseman, batted in the Pirate cleanup position and, while he maintained an average of well over .350 his list of bingles includes only four home runs. Quite a difference from the 30's and 40's compiled by Ruth, Ott, Wilson, Hornsby Foxx and Klein.

Any youthful player who can promise 25 or 30 circuit blows for the 1930 season will find a place waiting for him on the Pirate roster.

Expresses Belief Little Rock Black Flash Can Polish Off Hi Mitchell and Another As Good On Same Evening.

J. T. Watson, train master on Arkansas division of the Missouri Pacific who puts in his spare time looking after Johnny Hall, fast black boxer in the employ of the company, was in Hope Wednesday and took occasion to drop around for a short visit with the sport editor here and discussed the Hall-Mitchell scrap slated here for Friday night.

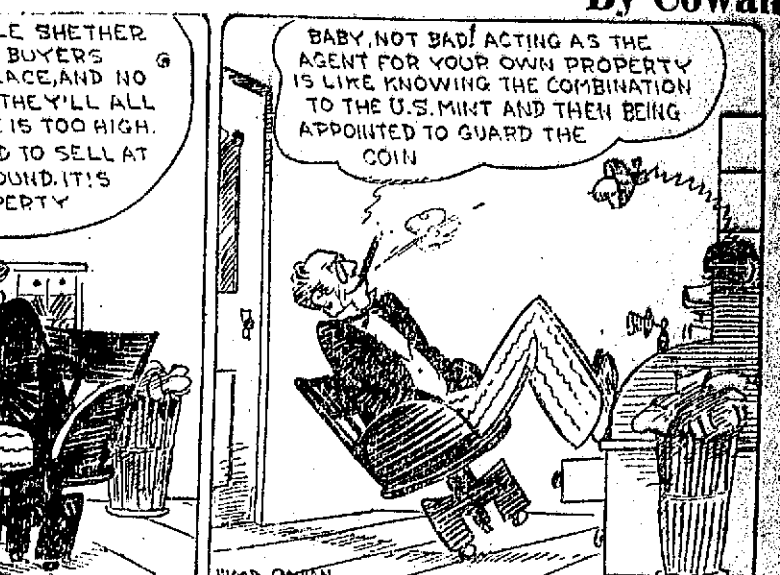

"I don't think this boy is too fast," Mr. Watson said, "but I do think he can polish off this Hi Mitchell, then rest a few minutes and take on another. Anyhow, I hope Mitchell's manager brings another good boy along for I'd like to see Johnny step out and show the fans here some real action. But Johnny will be here, in Al shape and I want Hope boxing fans to see him at his best."

Then the topic switched over to the Matlock-Dean bout at Cotton Valley Tuesday night and expressed a desire to see Matlock in action here again. "The old war-horse is good," he opined, "and whenever you get some one here to put him out you've seen a real battle."

And then he went down to ex-

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

WE'LL NEVER FORGET That—

HOWARD EHMKKE
Famed 13 Cubs to set a new strikeout record for a world series. . . . Thirteen more Cubs struck out the next day in the second game. . . . Mickey Cochrane twice broke and once equalled the world series record of putouts for a catcher in a single game. . . . Al Simmons equalled the feat of Ross Young in 1921, of hitting for a total of five bases in one inning. . . . The Athletics set a new mark for runs scored in one inning, counting 10 to shatter the record of eight set in 1912 by the Giants. . . . They also registered 10 hits in one inning to set a new record. . . . Scoring 18 runs in the fourth game, the Cubs and A's equaled the record established by the two New York teams in 1921. . . . The Cubs were guilty of striking out 50 times in five games, breaking the mark of 44 strikeouts by the Giants in six games. . . . Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx and Jimmy Dykes each made two hits in one inning to equal the record of Ross Young, New York Giants. . . . Simmons and Foxx tied Frank Frisch's achievement in scoring two runs each in the same inning. . . . Hitting home runs in the same inning, Mule Hass and Al Simmons became the fifth pair of teammates to turn the trick. . . . By fanning 17 men in 13½ innings, George Earnshaw bettered the performance of Smokey Joe Wood, who whiffed 21 in three full games in 1912. . . . Letty Grove struck out 10 batters in 6½ innings. . . . As a pinch-hitter, Gabby Hartnett was retired on strikes three times. . . . Rube Walberg in the final game retired the side on three pitched balls. . . . "Rajah the Great" Hornsby struck out eight times in the series. . . . Ehmke and Foxx pulled the heroic stuff in the first game by pitching and batting feats. . . . Hitting by Al Simmons, Mule Hass and Jimmy Dykes, placed them on the pedestal with Ehmke and Foxx. . . . Bishop and Cochran, by uncanny fielding feats at second base and behind the plate, won a place in the series spotlight. . . . Last half of the seventh inning of the fourth game, when the Athletics came from behind with that smashing 10-run rally. . . . Jimmy Dykes' great diving stop, Wilson's shoe-string catch and Simmons' one-hand stab to pluck a fly out of the left field boxes in the first contest. . . . Ear-splitting roar of the grandstand and bleachers that acclaimed the Athletics the world champions in the fifth game. . . . Great runout catch of Kiki Cuyler that robbed Al Simmons of a home run in the final game. . . . Charley Grima proved his class as a great first baseman by his capable fielding throughout the series. . . . Heart-breaking effort of Pat Malone, holding the Athletics to two hits for eight innings in the last game, only to be beaten in the ninth. . . . Smart pitching of Guy Bush to win the Cub's lone victory. . . . Great ninth-inning rally staged by the Athletics which won the final game of the 1929 series.
